

This presentation will review pediatric legislation and regulatory guidance's related to pediatric drug development and extrapolation. Emphasis will be on describing extrapolation approaches, when to consider extrapolation, and how to integrate new methods in pediatric drug development. Examples of how extrapolation was implemented in drug development programs will be described. Early discussion with regulatory agencies and continued innovative approaches in pediatric drug development is essential in advancing the number of safe and effective medicines available for children